The Regent Shoe

You Wouldn't Think of Paying Three Cents for a 2c Stamp!
Why Continue to Pay Three-fifty for a $2.50 Shoe?

It's the same proposition on a bigger scale—better shoes than REGENTS can't be bought for three-fifty. From heel to toe they are exactly the same as shoes that are selling for three dollars and a half—the same in every respect except in price.

Our plan of selling our entire factory output through our own retail stores saves you the middleman's profit and enables us to put three-fifty value into REGENTS and yet sell them for

For fifteen years REGENTS have been giving satisfaction to thousands of Washingtonians. Every pair is backed by the same broad Regent Guarantee—if they don't make good we will.

Horsemen's Association Plan Big Enlargement

Two Stakes Are Added to Yearly Championship Events.
Three and Four-year-olds Should Be Made to Earn Their Oats.

By L. D. SALE.
Local light harness horsemen are now on the first lap of the race. They know where they are going and they are on the way.

The start was made last Tuesday evening when the association held its annual meeting at the home of Mr. J. E. D. S. The most enthusiastic meeting of men interested in the light harness horse in this city within the last ten years. The District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia Breeders' Association has become an established institution, and there is every reason to believe that it will grow in strength and produce important results.

On Tuesday evening last, a definite step was taken to enlarge the usefulness of the association. Two stakes were added to the former list—a three-year-old racing stake and a four-year-old trotting stake. There is every reason to believe that breeders and horse owners will generously respond to the call, and that the youngsters are lined up for some time in August for the final test that all interested will be proud of their efforts.

It should be the endeavor of all persons interested in these stakes to have them raced off at an early date as possible. It is the long preliminary trials that play havoc with young horses. Too many good youngsters are killed off before they get to the races. Our experience in this respect is too recent to have escaped the observation of men who have watched closely the development of horses of tender years.

In certain quarters there is a strong prejudice against the development of two-year-olds on this account. But it should be borne in mind that two-year-olds must undergo a certain amount of development and that the racing of them for one day takes no more out of them than an ordinary workout. It should also be borne in mind that we are no longer in a primitive period of breeding light harness horses. By a process of scientific breeding, he has advanced toward a distinct type within the past fifty years more rapidly than did the running horse during the first 150 years of his existence.

The two-year-old trotting and racing of the present time, as fully able to withstand a racing preparation as is the two-year-old running foal. This being demonstrated every racing season on the Grand circuit, and on our half-mile ring. What kills off the two-year-olds every year before maturity is extreme development and severe racing. It is not only in this section of country, but in race two-year-olds more than once in a single season. Whatever damage is done to them is done in severe development. The person who owns early speed is a ways in danger of exacting too much from his colt.

On the other hand, we in this section have always been too tender with our three and four year olds. As a rule very few of them are raced, and they become a bill of expense to their owner. There should be a speedy revolution in this respect. Moderate racing will make better horses of them, and racing associations if encouraged by entries will always be glad to give them space on their cards. Breeders and owners of light-harness horses should bear in mind that, owing to the almost universal use of motor-cars, the sphere of the well-bred harness horse is limited to the race track. If he fails in that field of action hard work in other fields is his portion.

As a road horse he is a thing of the past, and there is not a single sign that he will ever return to his former sphere of usefulness. The sooner this important fact is realized the better. We live in a rapid age. We do business on the jump, from the going up to its going down, and time is precious if one expects to compete with one's fellow-men in business. Besides, why should one breed for speed if the horse so bred is not to be tried out on the race track? If he fails in the purpose for which he is bred, the sooner the fact is discovered by his owner the less the expense involved. Give us that this year owners of three and four year olds in this section will revise their tactics.

Where we shall race off our stakes in 1915 is another important question. If the Montgomery County Fair Association will deal with colt owners as liberally as we have reason to expect they will, and as liberal as the association should, under all the circumstances, there is every reason to believe that we can draw an attendance to the fair that will fully compensate the association for its pains and expense. We need not go before the members of the association in a begging attitude. We expect to offer four events of public interest, give us what is fair and we will do the rest.

The stakes close March 1, and every person interested in them must be on hand with his entries and money or remain out. The fees are only $2.50 per month, and the final payment on the day of the race is only $15. The terms are so easy that no colt owner who has in his veins the red blood of a sport can afford to remain out. We are anxious enough to believe that the entries this year will break all previous records. Public interest was never as high, and at no time were there as many high bred and promising foals owned in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. And again, we know where we are going, and we are on the way.
